

SUMMERSCHOOL

Activity Theory in Practice

A course for Masters' and Ph.D. students

Activity theory is a theoretical and methodological approach for understanding how people live and work together.

In the Activity Theory Summer School, Masters' and PhD students will learn to apply activity theory to undertake research and conduct interventions in the contexts of organisations and communities. Our instructors, each of whom have developed considerable expertise in the theory, will lead students in exploring both core concepts and emergent views on activity theory.

COURSE DATES

The course runs from June 17-30, and July 29- August 11. From June 25-28, students and instructors will meet at University West, Trollhättan in Sweden. During the other weeks, students will conduct individual studies.

To learn more and to apply click here.

INSTRUCTORS

Clay Spinuzzi,
University of Texas
at Austin (see also)

David Allen, Leeds
University

Annalisa Sannino,
Tampere University
(see also)

Foto: Jonne Renvall/
Tampere University

Stan Karanasios,
RMIT University

Yrjö Engeström,
University of Helsinki (see also)

COURSE COORDINATOR

Kristina Johansson,
University West
[kristina.johansson@
hv.se](mailto:kristina.johansson@hv.se)